BAGOT PRESS IS NOW ONLINE

www.bagotpress.com.au

Bagot Press launched its new online shopping website during July. Our goal with the introduction of this website is to provide customers with flexibility to do business with us, (whether that might be outside normal business hours or on weekends) and improve our service to you.

By now, you should have received your username and password by email and post. If you have not received your username and password please contact us.

Note: the password can be personalised.

You will be able to order by product search or view the Bagot Press product catalogue. Zoom in on your product of choice and go direct to the shopping cart to place an order. Customers can choose to pay by account or by secure online credit card facilities.

Plastic Bag Ban

In June 2008, the South Australian Government passed legislation to ban plastic bags. The transition to ban starts on the 1st of January 2009, coming to full effect on Monday 4th of May 2009. During the four month transition period, any retailer who still provides lightweight plastic bags must also provide alternative bags, so the consumer has a choice.

BANNED:

- Thin plastic bags with handle used to carry retail goods. Usually supplied at supermarket check-outs and take away food outlets.
- Made of lightweight polyethylene less than 35 microns thick.
- Degradable bags (made of polyethylene) which are not compostable and do not meet the Australian Standard AS 4736-2006

NOT BANNED:

- "bags on a roll" such as those used at vegetable and fruit stalls.
- Heavier plastic bags used by boutiques and departments stores over 35 microns.
- Compostable bags that meet Australian Standard AS 4736-2006

What's wrong with plastic bags?

Plastic bags are seen as a symbol of a wasteful society as they are a form of packaging that is often not essential. Plastic bags are a problem for various reasons:

- As a single use disposable form of packaging, plastic bags are typically used for a short period of time but take hundreds of years to break down in landfill.
- Plastic bags are an extremely visible and unsightly component of litter. If plastic bags continue to be used, the number of bags littering the environment will increase over time. Local and State Governments around Australia spend more than $200 million per year picking up litter.
- The production of plastic bags accounts for some 37,000 tonnes of plastic polymer derived from non-renewable resources. While plastic bags can be recycled, only a tiny proportion of plastic bags can be reprocessed.
- Plastic bags are considered to be a 'free' commodity, but the cost to households of $10 to $15 per year is added to the price of goods that they purchase.
- Planet Ark estimates that plastic bags kill at least 100,000 birds, whales, seals and turtles every year.
